

Overview: A great hike for visitors to the Lincoln area, or those just passing through on Highway 200 that want a quick stretch. This short hike climbs up to the top of the Continental Divide and affords hikers spectacular views of the surrounding mountains. The hike begins at the Rogers Pass trailhead, where visitors head north on the Continental Divide Trail, quickly climbing through alternating pine forests and open slopes filled with wildflowers in the spring and summer. The trail weaves around up to an open meadow at the top of the ridge and rewards hikers with breathtaking views of the upper Blackfoot Valley below and the plains of eastern Montana beyond. The namesake of this hike comes from visitors' habit of leaving mementos in the cairns on top of the ridge. All in all, this is a great hike for families, travelers, or just people interested in getting a taste of what the Continental Divide Trail has to offer.

Remember Me Ridge Hike #440

Map and Trail Guide

Continental Divide Trail Hike to Remember Me Ridge (#440)

Directions To Trailhead: From Lincoln take Hwy. 200 east towards Great Falls approximately 18 miles to Rogers Pass. At the pass there are enlarged shoulders that provide limited parking. These pullouts are ideal for visitors heading north on the CDT. But care should be taken if crossing Hwy 200. The larger trailhead at Rogers Pass is located on the south side of the highway and is accessed by a short 2 track road immediately west of the pass. This trailhead offers ample parking for visitors, but no amenities other than signage. If visitors are heading south towards Flesher Pass on the CDT they will find the trail leading from this larger trailhead.
